

LETTERS THREATEN N. Y. MILLIONAIRE'S NINE-YEAR-OLD SON

Writer Also Declares He Will
Burn Ross N. Turner's
Greenwich Home.

GREENWICH, Conn., Jan. 13.—Ross N. Turner, millionaire stock and bond broker, has received several letters within the past four weeks, apparently written by a foreigner, threatening the life of his son Ross, nine years old, and also the burning of his residence at Palmer's Hill, just beyond the town line.

About four weeks ago Mr. Turner's secretary in his office at No. 509 Fifth Avenue, New York, who opens all his mail, turned over to him a crudely written note. What warning this contained Mr. Turner would not reveal. Nevertheless, he at once communicated with Chief Talbot of the Greenwich police force, asking how he might obtain police protection for his home. Chief Talbot directed him to seek assistance from the State Police, as his home was outside the town line.

On Christmas Eve another letter came to the broker's office. The orthography was the same as the preceding one. The burden of the message was "Watch your baby!"

The day before New Year's came a third letter from the same writer with a threat to burn the Turner house. Only half a mile distant is Dumping Island, a community settled almost entirely by Italians, Poles and other foreign-born workers. The limitation was given by a man in a position to know that Mr. Turner suspects a man who had formerly been employed about the grounds of having mailed the letters. They were mailed from New York City.
